Installation

1. Un-Snap or unscrew all fasteners and padding for both left and right-side cheek-pads and styrene cheek-pad inserts. Pay special attention to how they are removed so that you can re-install them properly in reverse once the headset is installed.

2. Hold the main headset cable with mounting clip attached in place on the inside bottom left portion of the helmet, using the photo below as a guide, and mark the position for the 5/32" hole to be drilled in the bottom edge shell of the helmet.

3. Drill the hole from the outside, using a small hand drill and it is recommended to drill the hole to 1/8" size first, before stepping up to the 5/32" drill bit.

- Using the included #8-32X1/2" socket screw, washer, clamp assembly and #8-32 nut, tighten assembly into place using a 3/32" allen tool.

- Position the boom-mike assembly on the inside bottom right portion of the helmet as shown, mark position, then secure using the pre-gummed Velcro pad.

6. Peel the backing off the large Velcro pads and place them into the bottom of each speaker pocket indent for both left and right-side styrene pads as shown.

7. Now place each speaker onto the Velcro pad for both sides.

8. Reinstall both left and right-side styrene cheek-pads and while sliding them back into place, plug both speakers and the microphone into the main wiring harness of the headset. Use the supplied wooden tool to slide each wire under the main neck-roll and cheek pad interior padding, out of site.

9. Now reinstall both left and right-side interior padding pieces and secure to complete the installation.

Operation

1. Plug in the LOWER-Section G-Series hook-up cord that corresponds to your specific motorcycle audio system and test all functions. (G-series lower hook-up cord chart below)
